The crew were lurgenst danger of their live; Joseph Sutnau, whose leg had somehow got fastened in the shore live, and, as it tughtened, not only fastened him on the rinking host, but broke his leg. He was rescued just in time, by the rope being loosened, and trawled upon the lock. The heat awerved showly around a swept over the dam, carrying with it firly thousand bushels of coal—lost forever.—Mon. (Pa.) Rep.

Nowacows, Montgomeryshire, Nov. 17, 1888. My bear Sir. It is all over. My dear father cassed away this morulog, at a quarter before seven, and parsed away as gently and quietly as if he had seen failing asleep. There was not the least struggle, test a contraction of a limb or a muscle, not an expression of pain on his face. His breathing gradually become slower and slower, till at last it exists a suppression of pain on his face. His had been longer created. His last work, distinctly pronounced fount twenty minutes before his death, were, "Refer to come." Mont half on hour before he said, "Veryousy and confortable."

Tutarers.—It is something of a reflection upon the taste of our city to say that there was a good shound last evening, for auch acting as was offered should have attracted an overflowing accisace.

Mr. Booth performed Sir Gilea with that intensity which is his characteristic, and Mrs. Ada Menkin, who made her debut as Margaret, gave great satisaction. The part affords but little opportnaity for acting, but we could see that she has impolaiveness and istellactuality of style and asse, grace and self-possession of manuser, a voice of musical intonation and much personal beauty.
